Norwood, of Georgia: In the United States Senate, February 17 and 27, 1875 The Senate having under consideration the resolution to admit P. B. S. Pinchback as Senator from Louisiana - Mr. Norwood said: Mr President: When the fox, weary from the chase, begins to trail his brush and hears the deep-mouthing bay of the pack and the shout of the hunters pressing hard upon him, his instinct teaches him to double on his track in order to elude the hot pursuit. When the politician finds himself pursued by an indignant people he, too, from instinct turns in his path - endeavors to cover up his tracks and reach his point of departure. Sir John Falstaff was pregnant and quick with this high moral virtue. He was a model politician He knew the true prince from instinct. His modern lineal descendants reflect no shade of dishonor on the valorous instincts of their great progenitor. There is a story told of an animal whose depredations upon the beasts of the forest continued and grew to be so outrageous that he was finally called to an account. That animal was Reynard, the fox. He had abused Bruin; he had abused Chanticleer; he had maltreated Isegrim, the wolf, and Gieremund his wife, and, indeed, every beast of the forest and field. At length complaints were laid before King Noble, the lion, and Reynard was accordingly arraigned before the King, but instead of confessing his crimes, or putting in a plea of not guilty, he appeared and began to confess the sins of the other beasts. Mr President, we have an illustration of the...
